

Opposition Makes UMES Merger "Unlikely"

The Special Task Force to the Maryland State Board for Higher Education will meet Thursday, Sept. 29 to continue studying the possibility of merging the University of Maryland Eastern Shore with Salisbury State College.

The Task Force was formed by the board to study the problem and submit a recommendation for solving it, and has been meeting since last May.

SSC President Norman C. Crawford said, "I think it is unlikely that the Task Force will recommend a merger since the students, faculty and community people involved have come out so strongly against such an occurrence."

John T. Webb, chairman of the Task Force, sent an open letter to the students, faculty and alumni of SSC asking their opinion of the four possible alternatives the force was considering. They were: 1. The two institutions should continue to operate separately, substantially as they are now. 2. Specific facets of unification should be mandated by program and administrative structure, which would be administered externally to the two institutions, with the individuality of the two institutions being maintained. 3. A single four-year undergraduate institution should be created utilizing the resources of the two existing institutions.

4. A single regional institution of university status should be created utilizing the resources of the two four-year undergraduate institutions while suggesting functions that could serve regional needs, including, but not limited to the contiguous four counties in Virginia and Delaware.

Crawford said, "About 90% of the letters opposed any kind of a merger," favoring response number one overwhelmingly. "Most of the students who responded said they had chosen Salisbury because of its size and would be unhappy with the substantial changes a merger would bring about."

Anyone who answered was invited to testify before the Task Force but few people felt they had anything to add to their letters. Among those who did testify from SSC were Crawford; K. Nelson Butler, chairman of the Physical Education Department; John Lewis, of the Business Department; and Timothy D. Ragan, SGA President.

The Task Force also asked the Board of Trustees of the State Universities and Colleges and the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland to formulate their proposals for the future of the two institutions.

The Board of Trustees recommended that it become the governing board of the two schools without an immediate merger.

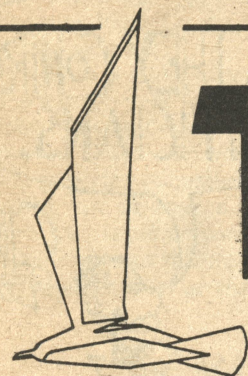

The Board of Regents approved a resolution which asked that SSC be merged into the university, a change in policy since they had traditionally opposed any merger. UMES Chancellor William P. Hytche, continued to oppose a merger between his school and SSC.

The Task Force will meet again Sept. 29 at the Wye Institute in Wye Mills, Md. to continue studying the situation.

Crawford said, "It is unlikely that the Task Force will recommend any drastic changes for Salisbury." He said that he expects them to recommend a regional board to coordinate the efforts of UMES and SSC with the two institutions remaining separate.

The Task Force was formed last May by the State Board for Higher Education after a budget analyst in the state legislature recommended that UMES be closed. He justified his position by citing the high cost of educating a student at UMES compared with other state supported institutions.

Fire Destroys The Civic Center, Leaves SSC "Out In The Cold"

Graduation, Homecoming, and Spring formal plans at Salisbury State will undergo serious alteration due to the June 27, 1977 Wicomico Civic Center fire, which left most of the building useless until rebuilding procedures are completed.

Damage was estimated at nearly $2 million with 100% of the original portion of the center completely destroyed, including the Normandy Auditorium, Flanders Meeting Room, and the front part of the Danag Room.

According to College Center Program Board (CCPB) chairman, Sherrie Pierce, two alternative sites are being considered for the Homecoming Dance, previously scheduled in the Normandy Auditorium of the Civic Center.

The two rooms which are under consideration as replacements are the Midway Room in the Civic Center (which was not destroyed during the fire), and Tawes Gymnasium.

Presently, Civic Center director Frank Buob has located his offices in the Midway Room, but Pierce said that Buob will be moving these offices to a trailer sometime in October.

Due to the limited 600 person capacity of the Midway Room, additional entertainment is also under deliberation.

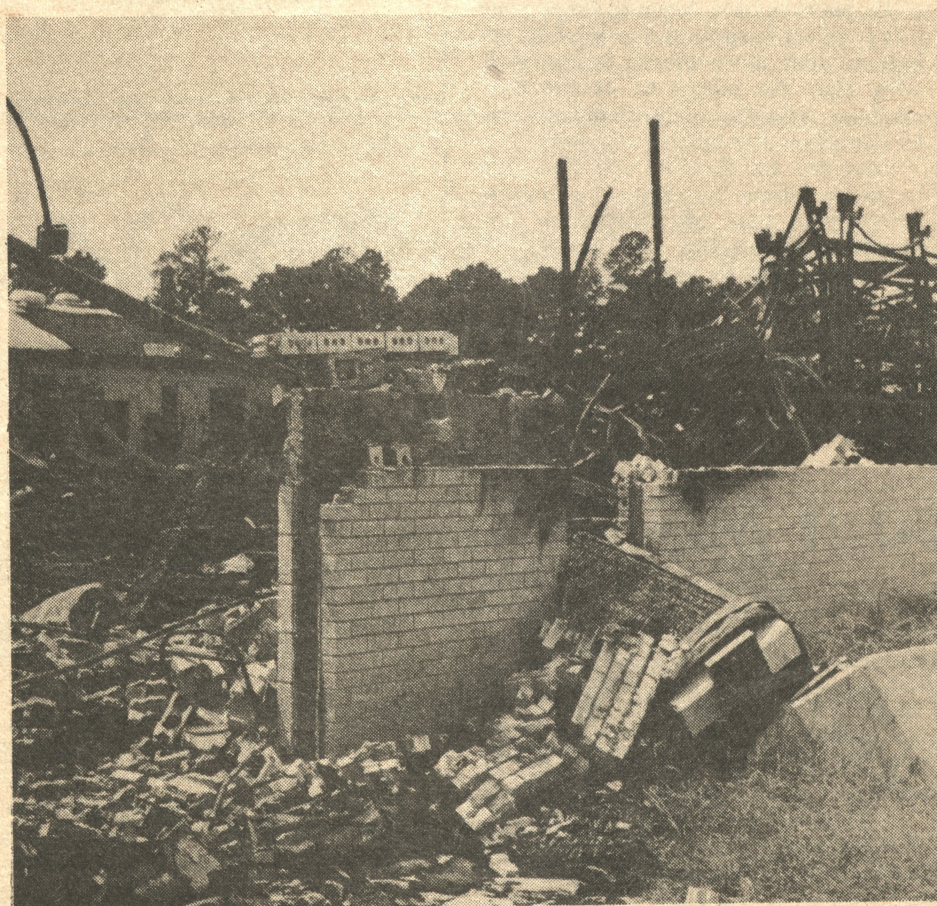

In addition to the Homecoming changes, a new location for the Spring formal has been studied by CCPB members. Although no definite plans have been made, the top tier of the three-tier garage in downtown Salisbury is being considered, as is the possibility of using the Physical Activities building, provided that a special floor covering is purchased by the college. "The idea of the garage sounds pretty good, because we could make it a 'dance under the stars'," Pierce said.

Graduation ceremonies previously scheduled in the Civic Center will also be affected. No alternative plans have been announced yet.

Buob said the fire, which began at approximately 12:15 p.m. and was controlled by 4:30 p.m., apparently originated from a spark from the buffer being used to strip the floors.

Buob said they are planning to rebuild in the present location, although the cost of rebuilding has not yet been determined. He also said the new building should have a 5,000 to 6,000 person capacity, making it much larger than the former center. Architects will be contacted in October, with the date for completion tentatively set for 1979.

The Civic Center fire destroyed most of the building with the exception of one small room in the front. This back view of the building shows the extent of the damage to the center, at which most SSC dances and May commencement were usually held.

Seek Secretary For SGA Post

By Pat Bailey

Recently-elected SGA Secretary Lesli Gould resigned from her post last month, according to President Tim Ragan. Gould, a sophomore, told Ragan, in a letter received in August, that she was returning to Florida for "personal reasons."

Gould's family was originally from Florida.

Brenda Townsend, a senior, has been appointed by Ragan to temporarily assume the duties of secretary until the General Board meets next.

"The General Board can appoint someone to serve for 30 days or until a permanent appointment is made," said Ragan. He said he will ask the board to officially approve Townsend to serve as the acting secretary until the permanent appointment is made.

Gould's resignation will not become effective until it is accepted by the General Board at the next meeting. At that time the SGA will begin advertising the opening.

Ragan said, "We urge anyone who would be interested in filling the position permanently to contact the SGA." The position of secretary is open to any student, but typing skills are necessary.

Ragan said he was surprised to receive Gould's resignation because when she left in May she had full intentions of returning to school here. She did not attend any Executive Council meetings held over the summer or respond to any of Ragan's correspondence until he received her letter of resignation.

Interested In Money?

This year the Student Government Association, which funds all non-academic activities for students, will have well over $100,000 to spend, $100,000 of students' money. How will you know that it's being spent wisely, for activities that generally interest a significant number of students?

You won't, if you are like the majority of SSC students.

More importantly, if you are part of SSC's vast "Silent Majority" you probably won't get your money's worth out of your Student Activity Fee, the money the SGA distributes, because you won't participate in $35 worth of activities. You are literally throwing your money away on somebody else's pleasures. Does it make you mad? It should. And you have only yourself to blame.

Recently the SGA held its annual budget hearing, a meeting open to all students at which campus organizations submit their proposed budgets for the coming year and ask the SGA for funds. A handful of students showed up for the hearings, and most of them were there to ask for money. And ask they did.

If everyone gets what they request, this year your money could go into funding trips to New Orleans, for selected students from various clubs, or to financing canoe trips, again for a limited number of students. It may pay for lectures which will attract some 10 or 12 students (if the weather is bad and they offer free food) at a cost of $100 to $500 per lecture. Or it could pay for the purchase of office furniture for an organization you don't even know exists. You are literally letting someone else waste your money.

The system cuts both ways though; it is equally frustrating for the students who are planning campus activities to spend money on events which invoke no interest from the rest of the student body. It is embarrassing to ask a "celebrity" to speak here, or have someone come to lecture about something which concerns most people, but have only a handful of students show up to listen.

Perhaps what we need is a new system, one which would have to rely on student participation, in large numbers. Before an activity could be planned, it would have to be suggested by a student here, and backed with support from a sufficient number of other students, perhaps in the form of a petition of sorts.

Considering the state of student apathy at SSC, this might mean that there would be no extracurricular activities on campus this year, but the students would literally have only themselves to blame, instead of those old standbys, SGA or CCPB. A faceless group of letters have been an easy target for criticism too-long. The average student finds it very easy to sit back and let someone else, someone they probably never met, do all the work planning student activities and take all the blame when they fail due to lack of student participation.

Wanted: College Center

The new College Center building did not open again this semester. This situation is rapidly becoming a tradition here at SSC. The building which was promised for last September (if you can remember that far back) had various target opening dates set all last year and here we are starting a new year and it still isn't open.

Now they are saying September 26 will be the big day. Well don't you believe it, at least not until you walk through those doors yourself.

The student body has been strung along too long now; we've been fooled not once, not twice, but more times than we care to count. We'd like to say that the students are "mad as hell, and they're not going to take it any more," but that's not the case.

What's happened instead is that a depressing sense of resignation has settled over the student body. Commuters don't think to protest about the sad state of their snack bar (hot dogs that have been steaming so long they look like prunes and everything else comes in a plastic wrapper) and residents who eat in the dining hall don't mention the long lines they endure because they don't have the use of the entire facility.

People here have begun to forget what it is a college is supposed to provide. It's been so long since there's been a gathering place for people to sit and communicate with their fellow students that no one knows it is missing any more.

Someday the building will open. But in the meantime the students who go to school here have lost something very important—the feeling of "community" we're supposed to take away with us when we leave here. Those students who will finish their college careers this December may leave feeling they have never known it. Let's hope the rest of us are a little luckier.

Vet Loan Procedure

Dear Editor,

VA has streamlined its student loan procedures by preprocessing student loan applications. In the past, loan applications were not processed until after the veteran had started school, and enrollment was confirmed by the school. But now the VA hopes to reduce the waiting period by a 30 day turn around period, and by accepting applications and determining loan eligibility before the start of the academic year.

The VA will make loans of up to $1500 each academic year to a qualified veteran student. To qualify three conditions must be present. First you must be a student who is receiving educational benefits and attending on at least a half-time basis. Second, you must demonstrate that your essential expenses during the school year will be greater than or close to exceeding your income. Third, you must have been turned down by two commercial banks in the area, or the school must certify that the area banks are not making guaranteed student loans.

Concerning the third condition, Union Trust Bank is the only bank in the area who has guaranteed student loans. To qualify at Union Trust, you have to be a customer of the bank. Therefore if you are not a customer of Union Trust Bank, the school can certify that there are no student loans available in the area. If you are a customer, you must first be turned down by them to be eligible.

If you would like to apply for an educational loan, or if you have any questions, contact the Veteran Affairs Office in Caruthers Hall.

Gymnastics Club

Dear Editor:

The SSC Gymnastic Club is seeking new members to participate in its 1977-78 season. Robert Morris, faculty advisor, has announced Club meeting times tentatively at Thursdays 6-8 p.m. and Saturdays 5:30-7:30 p.m. Other times may be scheduled if there is sufficient response from the student body. The Gymnastic Club is an interest group for anyone regardless of gymnastic ability. Besides workouts, the group plans to attend gymnastic demonstrations, meets, and clinics during the coming season. Immediate plans include a trip to see Nadia Comaneci at Cole Field House on October 7. Club members only may attend and ticket orders must be in to Robert Morris by Sept. 19. Call 742-2053 for further information.

Literary Magazine

Dear Editor:

A Meteor Shower? Attention those of you out there who secretly dabble in words and letters, you closet poets and aspiring editors. On Thursday Sept. 15, at 4 p.m. in the third floor lounge of Holloway Hall, there will be a gathering of people genuinely interested in the literary arts, in watching sunsets and shooting stars and oily puddles, and yes, in producing a quality literary magazine, namely the "Scarab". There is much that needs doing and much that can be done, so anyone who would like to see what we've got in mind and possibly join us is welcome to attend.

WSSC

Dear SSC:

WSSC Radio is the voice of Salisbury State College. At 73 AM and 107.5 Cable-FM, we serve the students of SSC with information concerning the campus community as well as providing an alternative to commercial radio.

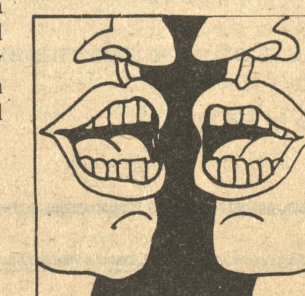

WSSC would like to inform you of the public services available. In addition to the Campus Classified series for rides and the buying, selling, and swapping of items of interest, WSSC continues to run spot announcements for campus clubs, organizations, and departments.

To get an ad on SSC's campus radio station simply send us the information you would like broadcast on WSSC. It will be composed into copy for air reading daily. If there is an upcoming event of special interest or a longstanding service to be publicized, WSSC will gladly produce a 30 or 60 second tape, a permanent recording of your message to run on the air until the expiration date you specify.

WSSC is THE public service of student organizations at SSC. It is truly a radio station by and for the students of Salisbury State College. Whether you're looking for a ride across the Bay Bridge or there's an event you need promoted, give us your words and we'll reach their ears.

Program for Commuters

By Patti Boyce-Bradley

The year of 1977-78 at SSC promises to offer some relief to the commuter students in the way of new facilities and programming of special activities. At the end of September when the new Student Union building has its "grand opening", commuters will have more than a place to get out of the rain. The new Student Union building will have an information center where students can ask questions like, "What do I do about graduation?" or "How do I get to the Student Health Center?" Imagine receiving real answers to these questions instead of the usual blank stare. Not only will the commuter students have a place to dine (other than their cars) and a chance for some social interaction (other than with the reference librarian), there will be a special section in the new building for fun and games.

The College Center Program Board is now setting up a special advisory committee for the commuter students. Hopefully CCPB will be able to offer daytime lectures, special interest courses and films for commuters who are unable to attend evening events. CCPB is also planning to purchase a video tape machine that would allow them to tape evening events (concerts, etc.) and then run them during the day. Anyone having suggestions or ideas for daytime programming is urged to write to "Commuter Programming", c/o CCPB, SSC or just drop by the office in the small lounge of Chester Hall.

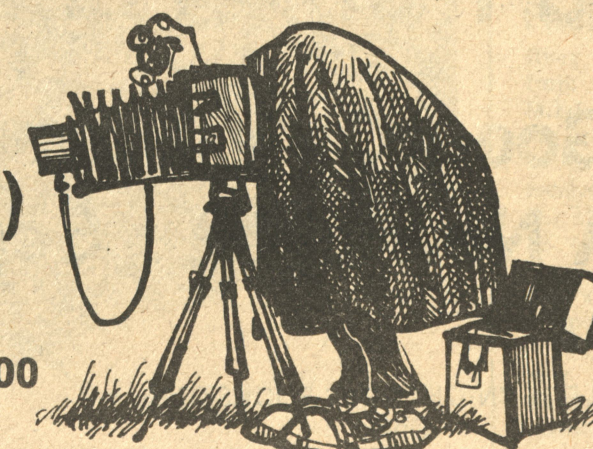

The past two semesters have been particularly hard on the commuter students. Considering that they constitute more than half of the student body it is only right that an attempt should be made to meet their needs. However it is the responsibility of the commuters to make this program worthwhile by giving their ideas and help. Commuters need to remember that anything good to come of this program is worth the extra time and effort because the benefits will be theirs.

SES Director Plugs Service

By Pat Bailey

Newly-appointed director of the Student Employment Service, Mark Hammert, commented, "SES is not only valuable to the students, it is an asset to the Salisbury community."

Hammert, a junior, was appointed this year's director by the Student Government Association. SES is a service of the SGA, funded entirely by the student activity fee, which is administered by the student government. The student who finds a job through SES pays no fee for the services beyond the $35 activity fee all students pay at the beginning of the academic year.

SES coordinates requests from businesses, and sometimes private individuals, in the community who want to hire a student. For summer jobs, the service actually canvasses the local merchants here and in Ocean City, to locate summer employment for the students.

Jobs listed with SES vary from those in food services, such as waitress and short-order cook jobs, to baby sitting assignments and clerical work. Hammert said about two-thirds of the students who came to SES looking for jobs are now employed.

SES also finds students to give blood for local Blood Bank members who are unable to donate for themselves. In order to keep up Blood Bank membership, a person must either donate blood at regular intervals or else find someone else to donate for him. People in the com-

Eleven New Members Join Faculty

By Cindy Craig

Few additions were made to the SSC faculty this year and most of those are to replace faculty members who have left or retired. SSC President Norman C. Crawford said, "All of the departments are tight this year. I don't think any have more people than they need."

Several new members joined the Communication Arts Department, which lost one faculty member through resignation. John M. Balas, instructor, received his B.S. degree in Speech Pathology and an M.A. degree in Speech Communication at Eastern New Mexico University, where he taught for five years.

Also new to the Communication Arts department, but not new to teaching, is Robert P. McClure. He received his A.B. and Ph.D. in Communication Studies at Northwestern University. "I've been teaching for a long time. I like the size and the easy-going atmosphere of this campus," he said.

New members of the Mathematics Department are Henry J. Greene and Sandra R. Smith. The department lost one of its staff from last year.

Greene received his B.S. degree in Mathematics at Worcester Polytechnic Institute. He taught at Wichita State University, University of Rhode Island and Johnson and Wales Business College before coming to SSC.

Smith received her B.S. at Howard University, where she was an M.A.T. candidate. She also tutored at Howard University for three and one half years.

Wavie Gibson, Jr., new instructor in the Modern Language Department, said, "So far, teaching at SSC feels refreshing and challenging." Gibson received his B.A. in Spanish at Morgan State College and M.Ed. (Education) at Salisbury State College. He has 12 years teaching experience and one year as instructor/consultant in Migrant Education at SSC.

After teaching for 11 years in various institutions, Clara Small has joined the SSC History Department. Small received her B.A. degree from North Carolina Central University and her M.A. from the North Carolina University and St. John's College.

Among several changes in the Nursing Department were the addition of two instructors and two associate professors. The new Nursing Department officially began classes this semester.

Kathleen Kolls has been teaching for nine years as an instructor of nursing at Peninsula General Hospital and Johns Hopkins Hospital School of Nursing.

A second new instructor is Tereza G. Sidrak. She has nine years of nursing and teaching experience at various institutions.

Expanded Hours Marks New Year

WSSC, SSC's campus radio station, has returned to the air for their fifth year of operation this semester with hopes of making it their best year yet. The station has expanded its operational hours, now broadcasting from 7 a.m. straight through to 1 a.m. on weekdays and from 12 noon to 1 a.m. on the weekends.

Thom Young, WSSC public relations director, said the extended hours are designed to capture the mealtime audience on campus and solidify the station's reputation as a full-time, full service radio station in the community.

Tom Bradley has returned as WSSC Program Director and "Crazy Joey" Norton is back again in his dual capacity as Station Manager and host of the infamous "Breakfast Show" daily from 7 to 9 a.m.

The station broadcasts from its studio in the basement of Manokin Hall via carrier current at 73 AM on campus and is on the cable at 107.5 CAFM in the greater Salisbury area. "You can't get WSSC on your car radio unless you are driving through Manokin Hall or on the third floor of Holloway Hall," Young said, "but thanks for trying." WSSC is a non-commercial radio station with an emphasis on album oriented rock and occasional programs of soul disco, progressive jazz, and "Top 40" formats.

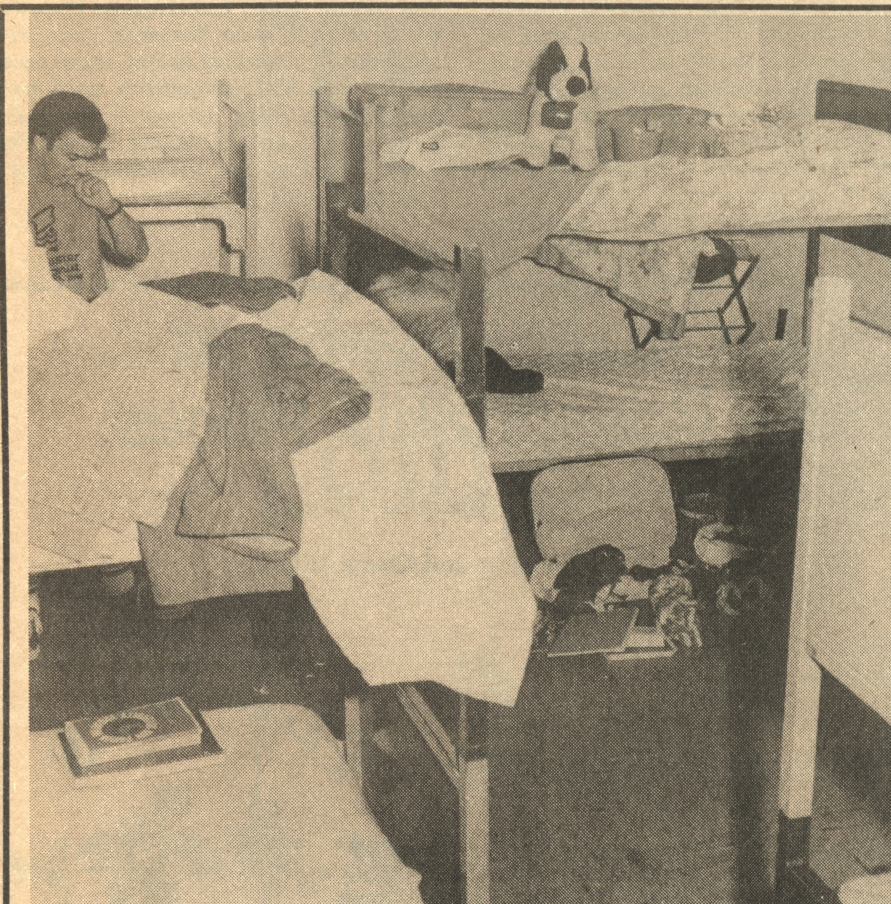

Beth Haynes, WSSC's Music Director, has found a home with the "Post-Breakfast Show" following Crazy Joey at 9 a.m. weekdays. From 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. it's "Getting Off For Lunch" with Thom Young.

WSSC will also present short campus news and notes program four times daily as a service to the college community. Each evening Tom Bradley presents "The Dinner Hour Times Three" with various guest hosts, a program which, Young said, should make the evening meal a bit easier to digest.

The afternoon and evening hours are filled with such familiar voices as Steve Bock, Ro McKnew, Marty "Mr. Nature" Huntman, Tai-Ho "Kid Hard-Times" Mitchell, Marty Dempsey, and many more.

With some promising new DJ's like Bob Borowick, Jay Lasley, Doug Bell, and others waiting in the wings, WSSC expects to come into its own as a major source of entertainment and information on campus.

Young said, "The staff would like to extend an invitation to all members of the campus community to get involved in their radio station." Anyone interested in knowing more about WSSC should stop by the studio in the Manokin Hall Basement or the WSSC office in room 326 Holloway Hall. Since WSSC is made by and for the students of SSC, "we wanna be your radio station."

The housing shortage on campus continued to be a problem this semester, as freshmen were tripled and a number of new students were moved into the extra typing and game rooms in the basements of the older dorms.

On the Arista label, AL 7001.

Dead fans rejoice! The Grateful Dead has brought forth another masterpiece, keeping their line of success alive with new sounds to be experienced, new songs to be sung.

Like all Dead albums, one must first become accustomed to the music, after which it kind of grows on you, then you find yourself humming the tunes all day long.

Grateful Dead has come a long way since the sixties and California acid rock, evolving to the seventies with a refined style of music which fluctuates in mood from each album to the next, as in the case of Blues for Allah, their last record, and Terrapin Station.

"Estimated Prophet" has a reggae beat reminiscent of our Jamaican brothers Peter Tosh and Bob Marley. I feel that this song has great potential for becoming a radio hit.

Donna Godchaux's "Sunrise" is a beautiful melody, soft and lilting to the ear, a truly pleasant song.

Side two is totally devoted to the title cut—"Terrapin Station", which, thanks to Arista Records, has been specially banded for airplay. Jerry Garcia is heard at his best, with the rest of the Dead contributing their musical genius to produce what can only be called a work of Dead art.

Warped Wit

By Bobby Pinto

You are now at peace. You've bought all your books and your schedule is finally straight. Your feet have stopped swelling after spending eternities standing in lines. Now you're asking yourself, "What am I doing here?" It is now that you start answering the four-year question of what college is all about.

First of all, it is a big place much like high school, but here euphemisms are used everywhere to remind you you're in college. A teacher is called a professor, a cafeteria is called a dining hall, the principal is called the president, and a place where they sell stale potato chips and cokes is called a student union.

Offices of administrators and deans are conveniently scattered over the campus so that when you have a problem, they can send you to somebody who is 90 miles from where you are instead of just down the hall.

The College Bookstore, an example of service for students, is here to serve your needs (that is if your needs are to stand in line for three hours, pay $17.95 for a 30-page textbook entitled "Medieval Bosnia" or a study of the effects of a sauna on deodorants). There is always present the atmosphere of friendliness and trust (it's just a coincidence when they ask for every identification but your blood type and fingerprint).

You may at times wonder, what kind of students are here? Is there so much knowledge and intelligence that everyone's talking about Marx's theory of social conflict or new developments in physics? Is there a lot of sophistication? I would say there is much sophistication if you call it being awakened at 3 a.m. in your dorm by someone running down the hall yelling fire while you get bombed with a water balloon. Around here is the general attitude that since "mom and dad ain't home, I'm gonna whoop it up." Suddenly it's summer camp.

The most interesting aspect of college is the professor (i.e. interesting to know, not to listen to). Some are humorous and interesting. Some are about as thrilling as watching clothes dry on the line. And some are so bad when they lecture that after a while you don't know what's being taught and no longer care. All of them have a warped picture of you, the average student: if you don't know the answer, they get mad (if you knew the answers would you be in that class?); if you do know them they won't let you B.S. so you can impress them.

There. You now more or less know what's in store for the year. College is a place where people brainwash you into believing that it is better to live and learn in an institution than to sit home and eat crackers in bed which is what you'd rather be doing.

"The Outlaw Josey Wales"
September 16, 1977
By Jay Lind

I would advise that unless you are a diehard Clint Eastwood fan you should skip seeing "The Outlaw Josey Wales". To be kind I will say that the movie is inane and boring, as well as being poorly written. It would seem that the script writer got hold of a book full of clichés about the old west.

One of the few redeeming values I can find in this piece of trash is in Clint Eastwood's snarling portrayal of the outlaw. It's such a shame that one of Mr. Eastwood's best performances is hidden in a film that will only be remembered as the first non-Italian spaghetti western. As I said before, skip this movie, wait for "The Bad News Bears", or "Young Frankenstein", both of which are far better.

I have one question which I would like to ask the makers of "The Outlaw Josey Wales". After giving this movie to audiences all over the country, and collecting millions of dollars in profit, I would like to know how you are able to sleep.

"The Bad News Bears"
September 23, 1977
By Jay Lind

If you've seen "Breaking Training", then you must see "The Bad News Bears". But don't expect "The Bad News Bears" to be a bit like its sequel. To begin with "The Bad News Bears" is funny, whereas "Breaking Training" is a hunk of junk.

"The Bad News Bears" stars Walter Matthau and Tatum O'Neal, and is an adult comedy about the Little League. Not just the kids, but the whole Little League experience is profiled here with wit and satire. We get an uncommon chance for introspection in watching children run about using language as foul as that of any sailor. The language is a symbol to them of their 'maturity', but then again they're only kids. It may not be deep, but it's fun. The competitive spirit held holy by the Little League is given the once over, as are the "Little League Parents". We've all got something to learn from this simple, funny movie.

Two "False Starts" Later, Timberline Makes 3rd Try

By Kris Messick

After an untimely accident and a snow-bound contract disagreement last year, the CCPB is presenting tonight's concert featuring the many-faceted band Timberline.

Timberline was formed in 1971 and is comprised of lead vocalist Jim Salestrom, lead guitarist and songwriter Doug Duggan, pianist Bill Howland, and bassist Chuck Salestrom.

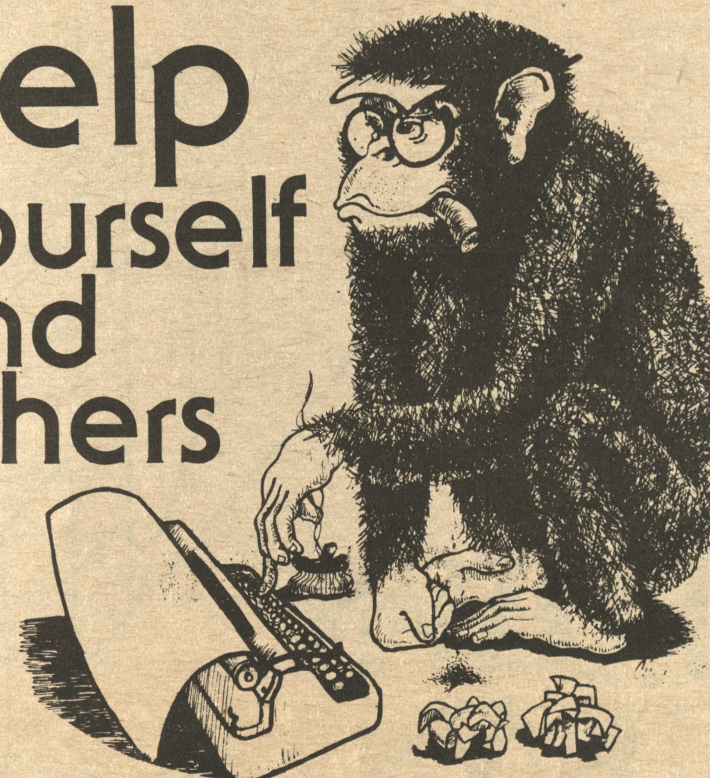

Timberline has played with such acts as Lynryd Skynryd, the Ozark Mountain Daredevils, Blood, Sweat and Tears, and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band. They have also recorded their first album on Epic Records, "The Great Timber Rush".

The concert will be held in the Holloway Hall auditorium tonight at 8 p.m. Tickets are free, if there are any left, at the CCPB office in the lobby of Chester dorm.

Timberline was scheduled to perform here twice last year but a car accident and a contract problem forced the CCPB to cancel both times.

Help yourself and others

The Flyer is one of the most productive and expanding organizations on campus. In our attempt to inform the students of Salisbury State, we have found the need for additional manpower.

This is an excellent chance for you to help the students at Salisbury State, while helping yourself. The prime hiring requirement of employers is experience, which very few of us have immediately after graduation. This is an opportunity for some of you to get the experience that will give you an edge over the other guy. If your area of interest is advertising, public relations, writing, or art, check with The Flyer and see what we can offer you.

Additional reporters are needed to cover such areas as entertainment, sports, academics, campus news, and editorial. The time needed for this position varies with the number and type of assignments.

Contact Joan Stack in The Flyer newsroom, located in Holloway Hall, Room 202 for information.

College Center To Open Soon

The new College Center is scheduled to open September 26. The center was originally planned to open on Sept. 16, but due to many late deliveries the opening was postponed. According to Gordon H. Howatt, director of Business and Financial Affairs, "The only problem now is the transformer for the fluorescent lights will not be delivered until mid October, but until that time something will be set up for temporary lighting; otherwise, everything should be ready for the building to open."

Located in the new College Center will be the bookstore, snack bar, which will not be completely operable until mid October, lounge, meeting rooms and a recreation room. This room will have pin-ball machines, pool tables and ping pong tables. An information desk will also be set up to check out games and purchase tickets to various school functions.

A grand opening for the College Center is in the planning stage, according to C.C.P.B. chairman, Sherrie Pierce.

Lacrosse Commentary:

Coach Considers Quitting

By Randy Barnhart

It happens every spring, girls emerge from the dorms clad in bikinis, guys are overcome by spring fever and fall in love like five year olds. Lacrosse balls and frisbees fill the air. They're all familiar sights in the spring at SSC. But this spring, unlike others in the past, a once familiar sight may become just a memory. That sight is Andy Jones, SSC's lacrosse coach.

There has been much talk about Jones' situation. Rumors have circulated and an article was printed in the Salisbury Times stating that Jones would not be returning to the helm of the SSC lacrosse team.

Jones' agreement with the college is that he is still the coach until he terminates his position. K. Nelson Butler,

Chairman of the physical education department said the administration is trying to find employment for Jones on campus and Jones is trying to find something in the community.

For the past five seasons he has been employed on a part-time basis, but with Jones' current financial problems, it's just not enough. With three mouths to feed at home, it doesn't put enough bread on the table. Said Jones of his situation, "I would be back if I could, economically." SSC President Norman Crawford said he had only the highest regard for Jones and stated, "The job is his as long as he has the time and wants to do it."

Fall Intramural Program

Grady Armstrong, director of intramurals, has issued the call to all armchair athletes to join this year's intramural program. Many new features have been added and as Armstrong said, "There's always room for more!"

For those students who brave the lonely weekends at SSC, there's bowling at the Cherokee Lanes. Located next to the Ponderosa Steak House, students can drive or even walk to bowl. After bowling two games, the third game is free. The only requirement is that students must have a valid SSC ID card.

This semester, students will be able to participate in a Water Basketball Clinic. Hosting the clinic will be Jill Coffin, faculty advisor to the SSC Swimming Club.

Back for what looks like another successful season is Flag Football. Flags and referees for games are provided by the Intramural Department. Stressing as little contact as possible, Flag Football provides tough competition for those individuals not involved in the varsity football program.

Armstrong said other activities are scheduled and if enough interest is shown, an intramural lacrosse program could be initiated.

Armstrong stressed the fact that the program is not limited to men only. There are leagues strictly for women and co-ed activities as well.

Co-captain Harvey Egan is shown dribbling the ball downfield during a recent scrimmage against Pocomoke Walters soccer team. The Gulls were stifled as they were defeated in a close match, 2-1. Number two (2) Johnnie Taylor watches along with Alan Byrd. Byrd is the Assistant Coach of SSC's soccer team. In the goal for Salisbury is Jimmy Lloyd poised for action.

and a year's experience under Connors' coaching system.

The Seagull soccer team has high hopes of rebounding from last year's dismal 1-13-1 record. Returning for his second year as head coach is Keith Connors. Through patience and hard work, Connors has brought the team into a control style of soccer.

Assisting Connors with the coaching chores are former Salisbury players Troy Doyle and Alan Byrd.

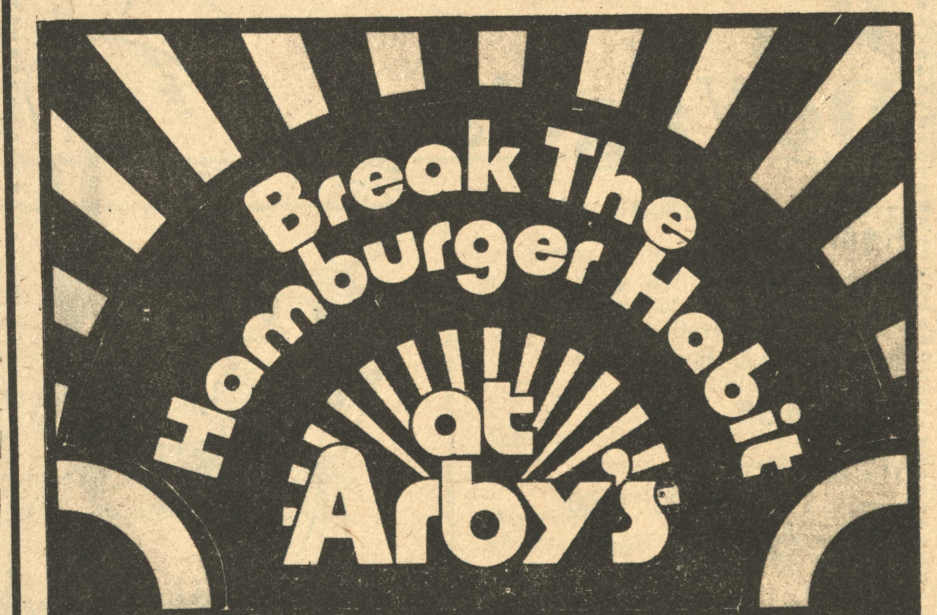

This year's co-captains are Harvey Egan and Scootie Carey. Egan, a senior from Wyckoff, N.J., is a cagey vet with a vast amount of knowledge for the game. This coupled with his skill and aggressiveness, Egan should be a player to keep an eye on this season. Carey, although only a sophomore, has good leadership quality and coolness on and off the field. He will be heading the defense in his sweeper position.

Joining the co-captains are 13 returning veterans. As a whole they have vastly improved due to the indoor soccer season

Among the returning booters are leading scorers Robert Shackelford and Tom Dickerson. Also returning is sophomore Vane Wiggins who led the defense at center fullback. Wiggins, a sophomore is a player any coach would be proud to have. Tending goal this year for the Gulls are juniors Tim Ramia and Jimmy Lloyd. The remaining veterans who will have a hand in this year's team are seniors John Taylor, Mike Morse and Jamie Keenan.

Juniors Chip Bradley, Gary Dorman, and Wayne Lackey are also returning along with sophomores Gene Adkins and Bob O'Meara.

Among the freshmen and newcomers who are expected to contribute to the team this year are Jeff Dorman, Eric Halter, Joe Lazzati, Nick Chamberlain, Dean Wampler and Rudy Medina. Rounding out the squad is sophomore Eddy Bailey of wrestling fame and UMES transfer Rob Morgan.

Varsity Football:

Yobst & Co. Build Team Strength And Depth

By Jim Tillman

For many people, August 17 may have been the beginning of a summer vacation from work, but for the young men who came to SSC that day it proved to be the beginning of an experience.

August 17 was the first day of pre-season practice or as it is called by most of the veteran football players, "two-a-days," referring to the two practices scheduled each day.

The SSC coaching staff met the returning players with a new crew of its own this year. Jay Tingle, working with quarterbacks and receivers, has given Salisbury a passing attack, something most of us aren't used to seeing.

Tingle had help, though, from recent graduate Frank Shumaker, who is back on the field developing linebackers for the new season. Assisting him is Chuck Markiewicz.

Jack Young will be working with the kickers this year while Keith O'Neal, Cam Jackson, and Levi Shade are coaching the offense. Jim Foster will be coaching the defensive line, setting the pace for the Gulls' front four.

Head coach Richard N. Yobst returns to lead the Gulls again this year along with three members of last year's staff, offensive line coach Ed Vickers, offensive back Chet Hanulak and defensive coach Mike McGlinchey.

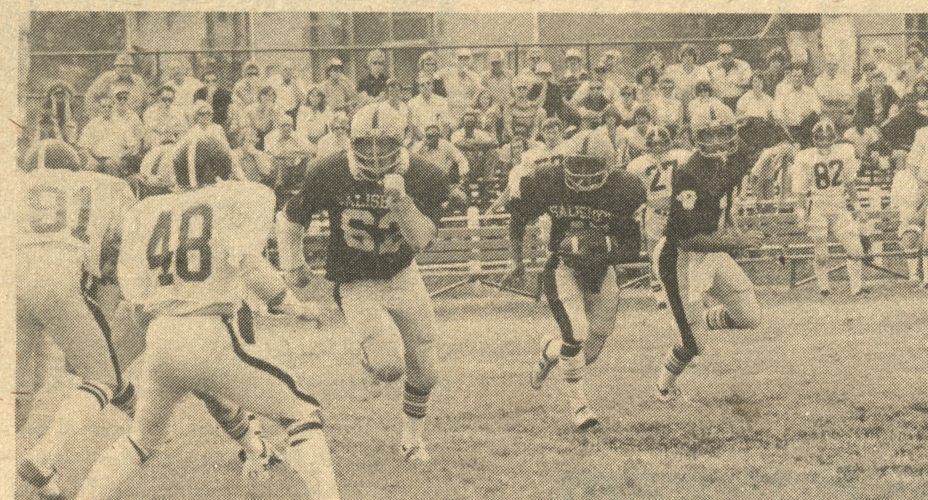

Three outstanding players were picked as team captains. They were Bobby Richards, Dave Kirchoff, and Greg McLaurin.

On the defense, the front four are Tim Trott, George Chester, Bobby Richards and Jim Tillman. They all have two or more years of playing experience. The linebackers, Pete Skrobot, Doug Gills, Jim Burks and Chip Rodgers are going to be backed up by Lowell Brawner, Dallas Phillips. All of these players have at least a year of experience.

In the secondary, Wallace Cook and Greg McLaurin are veterans backed up by Jay Jefferson, Tony Brown and Joe Cheseldine. Mike Walters, a senior, and Wayne Clemons, a junior, will be the veterans returning at safety.

Moving the ball offensively, the quarterback position has been up in the air with all three prospectives looking very good. Senior Bobby Moyle has the most experience, followed by sophomore Rex Barbour. Barbour has a very good throwing arm but usually elects to run the pass play. The third man looking for the starting job is sophomore Rob Kesler. He prefers to stay in the pocket, has an excellent pass and a quick release. All three should receive equal playing time this season, if no one gets injured.

The running backs this year are small, with the exception of team captain Dave Kirchoff. Kirchoff's impressive 1976 record won him the starting running back position.

If Jones doesn't return and the college can't make a deal with Shepherd, then an alternative would be sought in the school's administration. A coach could possibly be recruited from another sport or else SSC won't have a lacrosse coach.

At the present time, Jones is still head coach of the team. And nobody can take that away. For many people it's hard to realize the contribution he made to Salisbury. Jones started the program and helped SSC literally scratch their way out of the basement and gain national recognition in lacrosse.

It's a shame that the college can't afford to hire him on a permanent basis. This spring we know the bikinis will return, but Coach Jones may not.

back also. Fourth on the team last year with 372 yards rushing and five touchdowns, Preston's small size is an asset to him because it makes him that much faster. Terry Swann rushed for 284 yards and five touchdowns last year.

The receivers this year are senior Joe Zavaglia, with the most experience, a tight end. Sophomores Mark Schnackenberg and Peter Hanulak are competing for the starting wide receiver position, and Tony Smith moved from defensive tackle to keep Joe "Z" working hard for his starting spot.

The offensive front four are seniors Gary Doss and "Jeep" St. Ledger in the guard position with senior Bobby Jones centering the ball. The tackles are David Swartz and Peter Pratt, both with good size and speed.

These four men will be opening up holes for the backs this year. Mike Mayville, a junior playing tackle, and Sam Alexander, a freshman, are both pushing for starting jobs along with a few other freshmen.

Gulls Beat Randolph-Macon 16-3 In Season's Opener

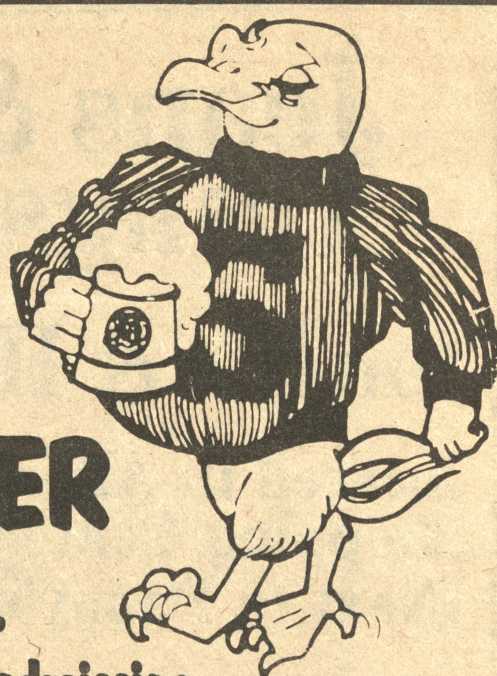

Salisbury State opened its 1977 football season last Saturday against the Yellow Jackets of Randolph-Macon. This is Salisbury's first game after concluding the 1976 season with a 7-4 record. They ended that season with a spectacular game in the Coco Bowl in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Salisbury narrowly won 61-0.

Playing on Parent's Day, the Gulls rallied to defeat Randolph-Macon, 16-3. Scoring for Salisbury were Terry Swann, Dave Kirchoff and Kenny Olson. Swann finished the day with 130 yards rushing and also snatching three passes for 42 yards.

Kirchoff rushed for 50 yards and contributed six points, while freshman Kenny Olson split the uprights with a 28-yard field goal. Sophomore quarterback Rex Barbour used the option to his advantage and rushed for 69 yards for the day.
